A Research Aid & Selected Bibliography

A likeness of the famous Chief Little Turtle (Me-she-kin-no-qhah) made from a cut out modeled after an 18th century painting.

THIS SELECTED BIBLIOGRAPHY was developed to help the student and scholar find resources in the Miami University Libraries related to the Miami Indians. This is not intended as a comprehensive nor exhaustive list, but to serve as an aide as you begin your research. The authors represented here often have other publications that you will also find valuable. Additional resources, websites of possible interest, and some suggestions for help in finding materials are also included.

Many of the illustrations are of Miami chiefs as portrayed by J. O. Lewis in The Aboriginal Portfolio (1836). A sample of Miami ribbonwork appears throughout the guide, and the original is on display at the Eiteljorg Museum of American Indians & Western Art in Indianapolis, IN, and is used with their permission. The images of the seal and the crane are being used here with the kind permission of the Miami Nation.

The Miami Indians

The Miamis originally lived in Indiana and southern Michigan. They moved into the Maumee Valley around A.D. 1700 and soon became the most powerful Indian tribe in Ohio. The Miamis speak a form of the Algonquian Indian language and so are related to the Delaware, Ottawa, and Shawnee Indians.

Political alliances were complicated and changed with the times. The Miamis were allies of the French until British traders moved into the Ohio country around A.D. 1740. The French forced the British out of Ohio and the Miamis allied themselves with the French again until the British victory in the French and Indian War. As French trading posts turned into British forts, the Ohio Indians banded together to fight the British. During the American Revolution, the Miami fought with the British against the Americans. After the defeat of the British they continued to fight the Americans.

Little Turtle was one of the greatest chiefs of the Miamis. He led a force of Miamis and other Indians to victory over two American armies, defeating the army of General Harmar in 1790 (Harmar's Defeat) and the army of General St. Clair in 1791 (St. Clair's Defeat).

General Anthony Wayne finally defeated the Miamis and other Ohio Indians at the Battle of Fallen Timbers in 1794. They surrendered most of their lands in Ohio with the signing of the Treaty of Greenville. In 1818 the United States forced the Miamis to give up their last reservation in Ohio.

Finding Books/Subject Headings

The Miami University Libraries online catalog contains the holdings of the Libraries on all campuses. Do a subject, author, title or keyword search to locate books, videos, journal titles (not individual articles), and other materials on your topic. On page two is a selected list of subject headings that you might find helpful. If you don't know what subject heading to use, try a keyword search. Put in a few select words that describe your topic and connect them with the word <and>.

For example, <Miami Indians and treat*>. The asterisk will allow for any number of characters after the root word. In this case, the search results would include resources containing treaties or treaty (and also treats!). After you have searched the Miami University Libraries online catalog, you will also want to search OhioLINK, which includes the holdings of academic libraries throughout Ohio, and Worldcat, for the holdings of libraries across the United States, Canada, and worldwide. These databases can be accessed from MiamiLINK (<http://www.lib.muohio.edu>) under Indexes and Databases.

Finding Journal Articles / Indexes

The Libraries' online catalog only indexes the title of journals, not their contents. You will need an index to find secondary source journal articles about your subject. There are many other indexes that may provide articles on your subject. For instance, a database that indexes literature and language, such as MLA International, may reference articles on the Miami Language. Below is a suggested list of indexes to begin your research. These and other indexes can be found on MiamiLink under the Indexes and Databases.

America: History and Life. 1954- . Indexes articles in history journals. After you have done a search, you can limit your search by the time period that the article covers.

Ethnic Newswatch. 1960- . Provides full text access to ethnic publications, including some Native American newspapers, magazines and journals. Provides the perspective of Native Americans on current and historical issues.

Government Documents Catalog Service. 1976- .

A comprehensive index of United States government publications. This index covers publications of executive agencies, including current debates on Indian affairs.

Lexis Nexis Congressional. 1789- . A comprehensive, often full text database of Congressional activities including hearings and other publications.

Lexis Nexis Legal. 1800s- . Indexes case law (often full text) and law journals. Dates vary according to source, but many court decisions date back to the early 19th century.

PAIS International. 1915- . Indexes articles and official documents on government issues and their social, economic and political ramifications. Includes policy oriented literature of the academic social sciences such as economics, finance, law, education, the military, political science, public administration, international law and relations, the environment, demography, public health, science and technology, and reports and commentary on public affairs.

Additional Resources & Contact Information

THE MYAAMIA COLLECTION is housed in the Walter Havighurst Special Collections and the Miami Art Museum. On November 14, 2002, the collection was established by Miami University and the Miami Tribe of Oklahoma as a repository of Miami Indian historical and cultural materials. Although still under development, the collection will include tribal archives, historical documents, papers, cassette tapes, compact discs, photographs and other ephemera donated by tribal members. Efforts of tribe members to revitalize the Miami language also comprise a significant part of the collection.

THE FERDINAND BACH COLLECTION OF NATIVE AMERICAN MATERIALS in the Walter Havighurst Special Collections Library was given by Ferdinand and Beverly Small Bach in 1988. A catalog of the collection is available in Special Collections.

THE NATIVE AMERICAN WOMEN PLAYWRIGHTS ARCHIVE (NAWPA) is a cooperative venture with the Miami University Libraries and Miami's Theatre Department. NAWPA is a collection of original materials by Native women playwrights of the Americas. It is housed in The Walter Havighurst Special Collections.
